TONIGHT IS THE NIGHT

Hughes Musical Comedy Co. Open Two Weeks Engagement at the Bijou.

Theatrical murmur—"There ought to be lots doing at the Bijou tonight, when a great crowd greets a company of favorite musical comedy players." After a lapse of six months and following a successful tour of the Orient, the Hughes Musical Comedy Company will again tonight, appear before a Honolulu audience. Friends of the different members of the company, made during their former engagement here, are planning a monster reception to greet the Hughes players and the company is just as active in preparing to return the demonstrations of their friends with special encore features.

"The Speculators" is the title of the opening bill and an elaborate production will be presented, it being impossible to recognize it as the same performance.

MADAM LLOYD
Leading Lady and Talented Singer

sent here last winter, for the slight plot frame has been built into a two-hour show around which much of the latest song successes are woven. The comedians will furnish no end of amusement in their trials and tribulations in trying to break into the "frenzied finance" game.

All of the company is very happily cast. Lyndon is in the principal part and Al Leonard is the eccentric character. Fritzie Guy, soubrette, has a solo and dance and Madam Lloyd, the leading lady, who is known as the silver throated songbird, has two of her best selections to warble. It is claimed the chorus is prettier and more vivacious than ever. Stienhope and Le Blanc are the two comedians with the Kolb and Dill parts. In view of the fact that only one performance will be given nightly the price of admission, 10c, 20c and 30c with a 50c charge for those who want their seats reserved, while the matinee prices have been placed at 20c and 30c. The reserved seat sale is being conducted at Benson, Smith & Co.'s drugstore at the corner of Fort and Hotel streets.

The doors open for the evening performance at 7:45 o'clock.

WILL WELCOME MISS MYLOTT

Another cable came from Sydney to Miss Eva Mylott, the Australian contralto, yesterday, asking her to name the exact date of her arrival in Honolulu, and reaffirming the information that her native town is planning all sorts of a high time when its favorite daughter reaches there after many years abroad.

"If it was not that I am so anxious to get back home and see them all again," declared the singer yesterday, "I should love to stay here in Honolulu for weeks—to linger indefinitely. They say we singers must have temperament. Here, it is so beautiful, and the sight of the sea and the mountains with all the wonders between just choke me at times."

Many of the friends Miss Mylott made on her trip down here have asked her to sing certain songs, and for that reason she has been unable to make up her mind regarding her program. The requests have ranged through the entire gamut, from the simple old melodies of our grandparents to the last, least word in the art as known in the salons of Paris, London and New York.

The singer declares that her voice, strained by her long, hard trip with the Russian Symphony Orchestra, has completely recovered its verve and power, through the long rest she has had while on shipboard.

Demand for tickets to her concert Monday night continue brisk. The seat sale is on at the Promotion Committee rooms in the Young Hotel.

Others may circulate papers but the Bulletin is admitted to have the largest circulation.
